Announcing the 2017 Louisiana Seafood Festival

New Dates: October 27-29, 2017, New Venue: Woldenberg Park, Same Great Food

NEW ORLEANS, La. (June 14, 2017) – The Louisiana Hospitality Foundation is excited to announce new dates for the 2017 Louisiana Seafood Festival, a celebration of Louisiana’s culture and most famous cuisine, our fresh and flavorful seafood. The three-day annual food and music festival will be held October 27-29, 2017. In addition to the new fall dates, the festival is also moving to a new but familiar location; it will be held in Woldenberg Park located in downtown New Orleans at 1 Canal Street, along the Mississippi River waterfront.

“We’ve been eager to share the change in dates and location for the 2017 Louisiana Seafood Festival,” said Tony Abadie, event co-chair and vice president of the Louisiana Hospitality Foundation. “We were in Woldenberg Park back in 2012, which is a beautiful waterfront venue for promoting Louisiana’s seafood. And the end of October is such a wonderful time of year in downtown New Orleans. This should be the perfect place and time for hosting a fall food festival!”

The Louisiana Seafood Festival will continue to offer the same great array of seafood dishes and top-level live music each day. Some of Louisiana’s best restaurants and caterers will be cooking authentic Louisiana seafood dishes featuring fish, crab, shrimp, oysters, alligator and crawfish, prepared in dozens of delicious ways. Guests will also continue to enjoy attending cooking demonstrations with celebrity Louisiana chefs, learning secrets to exceptional seafood preparation and cooking.

The festival is produced by the Louisiana Hospitality Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization whose mission is to strengthen Louisiana’s hospitality industry through support of individuals within the community.

Founded in 2006, the Louisiana Hospitality Foundation’s mission is to strengthen Louisiana’s hospitality industry through support of individuals within the community. We do this by supporting workforce development programs directly related to our industry, providing access to culinary and hospitality education, working to ensure a positive perception of Louisiana’s hospitality industry, and providing financial assistance and/or guidance to people in the hospitality industry during times of crisis. Since its inception, the foundation has distributed over $1.5 million in support of its mission.
