

The Inn On Bourbon
New Orleans Up Close & Personal™

“Philosophy Café”, presented by the New Orleans Lyceum

What: A two-hour group Philosophical discussion of a specific topic, facilitated by the not-for-profit New Orleans Lyceum

Where: The Inn On Bourbon’s Café de l’Opera
541 Bourbon Street

When: Monday, September 20, 2010 at 7:30 PM

Details: The New Orleans Lyceum, an organization dedicated to adult learning, will host a “Philosophy Cafe” or “Philo Cafe” at the Inn On Bourbon. A philosophy café is an opportunity to actually do philosophy in a fun conversational manner without reading heavy texts or listening to ponderous lectures. The goal of this discussion is not to come up with definitive solutions to philosophical quandaries but to demonstrate, by interaction, how complex and interesting concepts can be when they are applied specifically and generally.

The tradition of philosophical conversation goes back to the ancient philosophers of Greece and maybe earlier. This tradition became famous again in the salons of the French Enlightenment of the 18th Century and in Paris after the Second World War.

Scheduled for the third Thursday of every month at the Inn On Bourbon, these 90 minute sessions will focus on a different topic each month. The Philo Cafes will be facilitated by Lyceum instructors and are open to any interested adults.

Established in 2003 by David O'Donaghue, Psy.D., the New Orleans Lyceum consists of a group of independent scholars who teach yoga, history, poetry and other artistic activities to local adults. The organization also presents film screenings and discussions at the Inn On Bourbon.

For more information, call David O'Donaghue at 504.473.7194 or email neworleanslyceum@gmail.com.

Lagniappe: Special $5 parking at The Inn On Bourbon is extended to all guests attending the performances.

Located in the heart New Orleans' famous French Quarter and on one of the world's most popular streets, The Inn On Bourbon consistently offers guests the finest personal service, superior accommodations and overall value.
